

Demodex Mites, The Hair Killer!

If you've seen the top 10 most eligible bachelors in Hollywood, you'd notice that most of them would have a full head of hair. Like it or not, a whole head of hair makes a huge difference in the way women perceive men.

When men start balding or losing hair, it often makes them look older than they are, and some men suffer from lack of confidence because of hair loss. Oily hair loss is a common hair loss among men.

Symptoms of Oily Scalp Hair Loss:

- Excess sebum scalp
- Scalp inflammation
- Weaken hair root
- Scalp acne
- Excessive hair loss

Oily scalp is the breeding ground for demodex mites. According to research, demodex mites have a significant relationship with hair loss. Demodex is invisible to the naked eye and can only be found under a microscope. Demodex is fed with the sebum from sebaceous gland and it will secrete lipase to digest the sebum. Lipase has been associated with inflammation, which is believed to also shorten hair's life cycle and link to serious hair loss problem.

Don't lose hair unnecessarily

WHEN men start losing their hair prematurely, it often makes them look older and due to their hair fall problem, some men suffer from a lack of self-esteem especially when socialising.

Hair fall is the most common type of problem for men with hair troubles.

One of the causes of hair fall is the affliction of Demodex mites, which are invisible to the naked eye. They measure only 100-300 microns in length, and can only be seen under a microscope.

Demodex follicle mites live inside the sebaceous glands and hair follicles and damage the cell walls.

The presence of Demodex mites has also been associated with inflammation, which is believed to also shorten the hair's life cycle and is linked to the problem of serious hair fall.

Obvious signs of Demodex mites include itching, a crawling sensation on the scalp, face, as well as extensive hair fall.

Other causes also include hormones called dihydrotestosterone (DHT) in the hair follicles.

To overcome such hair fall problems, 101 Hair Care has tapped into a breakthrough technology in hair care. Utilising 100% natural herbs, the 101 Hair Care brand has garnered more than 10 international awards and has attracted over 16 million customers.

It recently launched a solution that specifically targets Demodex mites. The Demodex Solution Technology (DST) hair product is effective and non-invasive. It is combined with a specialised ozone solution to kill the bacteria in the hair and scalp. This procedure allows much needed oxygen for the hair follicle to resume its growth cycle. It also helps to soften dead cells and clogged pores, neutralise poisons and remove undesirable odours. The DST solution also incorporates Far Infra Red Energy to improve blood circulation.
